

UPDATED JUNE 7, 2010

THE SHARON FAMILY IN KENTUCKY

This section covers the family of Hugh Sharon and Jane Barnhill. Hugh was a son of Hugh Sharron and Jane Fisher from Juniata County Pennsylvania. After the Revolution, this family went westward about 1795 to Fayette County in Kentucky.

Most of the family remained in Kentucky, but one son, Robert Sharon, continued on westward in 1831 and settled in Brown County Illinois. Another son, John Sharon, moved to Fountain County Indiana about the same time.

HUGH SHARRON

Hugh Sharron was born in Fermanagh Township, Juniata County Pennsylvania in 1768.

There were two young Hugh Sharrons about the same age. One would have been the son of James Sharron and the other the son of Hugh Sharron his brother. Both James and Hugh were the sons of William and Margaret Sherron.

This Hugh Sharron was the son of Hugh. James' son Hugh seems to have gone with his brother William to the Westmoreland County area in the early 1790s.

Further evidence was shown in the section covering the senior Hugh Sharron. Here I showed how he was involved with Jane Fisher and she had a child, Hugh, by him who was raised by her parents and later her brother James Fisher. Since this Hugh Sharon and Jane Barnhill named a son James Fisher Sharon, the tie-in seems right. This Hugh Sharon in this section was the son of the Hugh Sharron who was a son of William Sharron and Margaret Chambers. His mom was Jane Fisher and he and the Fisher families all came out here to Kentucky together.

At any rate, this Hugh Sharron was born in 1768 in the Lost Creek Valley of Fermanagh Township in what was to become Juniata County. He served in the Revolution in the Cumberland Militia. After the War, he returned to Lost Creek and married Jane Barnhill some time around 1790. Jane was born in Bucks County Pennsylvania in 1772, and was a daughter of Samuel Barnhill and Jane Craig from Northern Ireland.

Hugh and Jane's first two children were born in Fermanagh Township; Samuel Sharon in 1792 and James Fisher Sharon in 1794.

Shortly thereafter, Hugh and most of the other branches of the Sharon family headed southwest to take up bounty lands. While several Sharon families settled for a while in Westmoreland and Fayette counties, Hugh and Jane seem to have headed further afield and ended up in Scott County Kentucky. Scott County is in north central Kentucky just below the Ohio border. They more than likely traveled by boat down the Ohio River.

Now comes an interesting part. There was a newspaper article in the SHARON (Pennsylvania) HERALD on Friday October 5, 1956 which investigated the origin of the name of the town, Sharon. A descendant of this Hugh Sharon, Harold Culbertson, stimulated interest in trying to prove that Sharon, Pennsylvania was named after his Hugh Sharon and not after the biblical Plains of Sharon as originally thought.

Further investigation indicated that although the town was formed in 1815 by William Budd, the first recorded deeds were handwritten in the name of Aaron. It is now believed that Aaron was in fact a misreading of the name Sharon and this early Sharon was the one who sold property to William Budd who built and named his Sharon Tavern after this early family. This fact was recorded apparently in a 1830 family bible of James Fisher Sharon.

This may well have been the case, but I tend to doubt it. By 1796 this Hugh Sharon and his wife, Jane, were in Fayette County Kentucky where their third child, John Sharon, was born in June of that year.

The 1800 Pennsylvania census shows a Hugh Sharran in Beaver County. Beaver and Mercer counties were both formed in 1800 out of Allegheny County. Sharon is in Mercer County. It would therefore seem to me that there was obviously a Hugh Sharon in the vicinity of Sharon, Pennsylvania in the 1790s, but that it could not have been the Hugh Sharon who was in Kentucky at the time.

The Hugh in the Sharon, Pennsylvania area had a son, also Hugh, who went just over the border into Trumbull County Ohio in the very early 1800s and appears there in the 1810 Ohio Census. This young Hugh Sharon's life was included in the section on the OHIO SHARONS.

Now....., back to Hugh and Jane. They remained in Fayette County Kentucky only a short time and then moved to adjacent Scott County. In fact they may not have moved as these two counties were established in the 1790s from Virginia counties and the borders may have been ill-defined at the time. The births of their next three children are all recorded as occurring in Scott County; Robert in 1798, Jane in 1800 and Nancy in 1804.

Hugh and Jane remained for the rest of their lives on their farm in Scott County Kentucky. Jane died sometime in the early 1840s and Hugh in early 1847. The will of Hugh Sharon was proved in court on June 21, 1847.

The following is what I know about the children of Hugh and Jane Barnhill Sharon.

MISCELLANEOUS KENTUCKY SHARONS

The following items were found in the IGI of the Morman Records. As of now, I cannot associate them with any families.

EDMOND SHARRON married Ann Taylor in Mercer County Kentucky on July 28, 1828.

ALLEN SHARRON was born in Scott County on April 7, 1855. He is listed as a son of B. F. SHARRON (probably Benjamin Franklin Sharron) and Eliza J. Cox.

The next few early listings may be connected to the William Sharron who also went from Fayette County Pennsylvania into Kentucky.

MARY SHARON married Basil Williams in Bourbon County on October 5, 1797.

WILLIAM SHARREN married Martha Wood in Girard County on December 1, 1798.

LOUISE SHARON married John Hawkins in Christian County on May 2, 1814.

I really haven't delved deeply into Kentucky yet except for the family of Hugh Sharon. Hopefully more news and film on the 11:00 News.
